ABSTRACT

The paper examines the educational problems, societal issues and the traumatic stress faced by the orphan students overall. In terms of education, learning the English language for orphan students has become a distant dream since the students cannot learn the language with ease. Hence, the orphan students are alienated from the society due to lack of confidence and appropriate care. The paper discusses the problems related to learning English vocabulary faced by the orphan students in their learning process. In addition, it also deals with the possible ways of learning new English words by the orphan students, using the technique called the "Hypnopaedia".
